Two named to Isaiah House board

The Isaiah House has two new board members.

Dr. Wayne Goodlet, a medical doctor, lives in Lawrenceburg with his wife Sherry and is a member of Nelson County Baptist church, a graduate of University of Louisville Medical School and formerly of the Nelson County area.

Patsy Kirsch lives in Willisburg with her husband John. She is a member of Willisburg Baptist Church, attended Woodford County High School and is a graduate of Lexington Beauty School. She was owner of Kirsch Grocery and now is retired. She is a lifelong resident of Washington County.

They join Ray Montgomery, president; Greg Bowen, secretary; and Michael Mullins, Mark East, Jim Clontz, Jack Coleman, Darryl Peavler and Phillip Coulter.

The Isaiah House, located in Willisburg, is the only men's long-term live-in drug and alcohol recovery program in the 15-county area and can house up to 72 men in treatment.

Isaiah House also has been named Kentucky's best and most effective program for five consecutive years by the Acton Institute of Michigan.
